Robert,

I intended to send the email below to you on my phone but accidentally sent it to Cameron instead of you. As stated in that email, we accept your counter-offer. Cameron agrees to forego the appeal and will pay the slightly reduced amount of $1 million instead of the larger amount currently owed in order to resolve this matter entirely. We can present the Judge with a joint proposed order distributing $1 million of the deposited amount to your client and the remainder to Cameron. Are you all in a position to draft the order and any other papers necessary to memorialize this agreement?

I apologize for the delay caused by sending Saturday's email to the wrong address. Best wishes.

Thank you Robert. Although it would be an interesting appeal, Cameron is ready to get this behind him. He agrees to forego the appeal and will pay the slightly reduced amount of $1 million instead of the larger amount currently owed. We can present the Judge with a joint proposed order distributing $1 million of the deposited amount to your client and the remainder to Cameron. Are you all in a position to draft the order and any other papers necessary to memorialize this agreement? Sooner is better since the notice of appeal is due Monday. Thank you. Rob

Rob -- thanks for the quick response. I passed this on. They will not take less than $1 million and would prefer going through the appellate process than take less. Happy to talk further if helpful. Thanks, R.S.

Hi Robert. Thanks for calling. I spoke to Cameron. We believe $1 million is a bit high to give up our appeal. But we are willing to meet you all in the middle and pay $925,000. Thank you. Rob
